

2123 N. Beachwood Drive,
Hollywood, California.

February 13, 1935.

My dear Philip:

Thank you very much for your letter and also for sending me "European Journey" by Phillip Gibbs of which I had heard and read a review, but I have not read it, and it was very kind of you to have thought of sending it to me. I am sure it will arrive in a couple of days, certainly before the end of this month when I leave for New York.

I am glad you have been able to let the Castle for some educational institution. You must be greatly relieved not to be burdened with it.

Rajagopal has had his two operations on his antrums, and though he has had a great deal of pain for which he had to take drugs, he is now out of it pretty well, though a bit tired naturally. He will join me at the end of next month when we leave for South America, but I go ahead at the end of this month to New York where I have to speak.

I hear that Noomi is in California, but I haven't seen her.

Please give my affectionate regards to your wife.

With all my best wishes,

Yours affectionately,

Kishua